MAGYAR FOLKLORE VERSES.

Ah, how muddy's our country lane
After autumn rains have soaked the dust
But worthy, worthy is the girl I love
Of all that can a youthful lover move
And my top boots muddy make
Willingly for her sweet sake.

With esards hat set jauntily
And docket with perfumed rosemary,
I'll stroll adown the village street.
How all the girls will smile on me!

Wrinkled my top boots are and long,
Upon their heels gilt spurs shine bright.
They'll clank the time to dance and song.
How all the girls will smile tonight!
—A Girl's Wandering in Hungary.

ASHES OF ROSES.

On that particular morning I was in a decidedly sentimental mood, because the day before I had heard a young and charming woman accompanying herself at the piano and singing the tenderness of romances in which during the last note the butterflies of the song linger at the heart of the roses.

And the garden in which I was walking was quite of a character to foster this gentle frame of mind. It was not wild or overgrown.

Its flower beds, where blue, red and yellow blossoms were ranged with as much precision as the Sevres cups and Saxony statuettes on a whatnot of a provincial housewife; the sand of its paths, where the make had left markings as distinct, straight and even as the lines in a bar of music; and its correct and uniform borders, stiff as the frills of a dress that had not been crushed, seemed to suggest the ambition of a very pleasant ideal—an ideal in perfect taste, without violence or exaggeration; narrow, elegant, pretty and quite suited to furnish water color subjects.

A July sun leashed its gold and threw into the garden all the infinite that a bouquet is capable of holding.

A butterfly which was fluttering around like two flower petals set free by the wind brushed past my hand, leaving on it a little of its fine, white powder.

"White butterfly," said I, for the remembrance of the song led me into such reveries, with this delicate winged creature, "white butterfly, do not hasten away, but stay, rather, and settle down on this leaf—a flower would take too much of your attention—and listen to a question which I have always wanted to ask you or one of your kind."

The butterfly poised himself on a leaf. "I am listening," said he. For why should he not have answered, since I had spoken to him in French?

"Frisolove lover of roses and lilies," I began, "whence comes this delicate powder you scatter from your wings as you fly from flower to flower can you tell me? I am sure you must have suggested the arts of the toilet to the perfumer, for yours are the only wings that scatter whiteness like a puff."

The butterfly said, "It is strange." But as he had nothing to do he consented to enlighten me. I am sure we should learn many things that are not in books and not known by learned men if we chatted more frequently with the insects of the woods and fields.

When autumn haired Eve was born at 16, an age at which the women of our time do not figure half long enough in the marvellous Eden, teeming with life and youth, she was plunged at first into an ecstasy of admiration at the sight of so much magnificence, and not the smallest pang of envy poisoned her heart. Even before she had gazed into the nearest spring all creatures crowded around to do her homage, and after having seen her own radiant reflection she conceived a profound feeling of compassion for all other created things.

The splendid lights in the lion's mane, luminous in the sunshine, could not rival the tawny brightness of Eve's long, floating locks.

Why should she have been jealous of the swan, since her own throat and arms were made of living snows, or why of the great vixen in the forest, her own embrace being far more treacherous and more sweet?

The sky, in its deepest, clearest blue, might have hoped to rival her eyes had they not had a softer and more exquisite azure.

In fine, she looked at all things, and a great wave of pride came over her.

"Without doubt," she said, "all is very good, but what of it all?" And thereafter her favorite amusement was to sit under a tree and pass all the day kissing the rosy tips of her slender fingers.

Till one day she saw a rose.

The rose was there before her, as yet scarcely a rose, almost pale in its triumphant grace. It opened and widened, radiant as a star, luminous and living, almost human, like a woman.

A tiger passing that way lingered to gaze on it and wept from tenderness.

Then Eve felt something stirred within her. She understood that throughout all eternity she had a rival. Beautiful as she was, the rose was not less beautiful. Perfume against perfume, grace against grace, to the end of time their charms would be pitted against one another and there would be an endless and unceasing struggle.

In vain impassioned poets of all ages would try in enthusiastic madrigals to prove to their mistresses the defeat of the sovereign flower. Eve had no illusions on the subject. The rose would always defy her, and to woman's eternal humiliation she would be compared to her splendid and victorious rival.

A sadness, of which you can form no idea, took possession of her, whose supremacy, acknowledged by all other created things, was disputed by a mere flower. She no longer had any pleasure in the limpid streams, whose clear waters mourned her bright image. The swans, whose whiteness had not rivalled hers, still sported on the azure lakes, but Eve no longer watched them.

All night she dreamed bitterly of her rival and tossed unconforted under the cold indifference of the stars. For hours she would remain seated under a tree without once kissing the slenderest of her rosy finger tips.

So great was her despair that at last she resolved to destroy the rose that had dared question her title to incomparable beauty. Alas, she knew only too well that a dead rose did not mean the disappearance of roses altogether. They would bloom again every spring, time, every summer, to the shame of lips less red and of skin less rosy white. But at least Eve would have avenged the first insult.

First she thought she would tear her enemy to pieces, trample it in the dust among the stones, then fling it to the furious wind as it passed. She had once seen a vulture seize a lamb; so would she have liked to tear the rose.

However, she bethought herself of another torture. She built upon the sand a little pyre of dried grasses, lighted it with a glowworm, and picking the rose tossed it into the fire. A shudder passed over its delicate petals, as, with a low, plaintive moan, it yielded up all its perfume, its charm, its rosy whiteness, its life and incomparable grace to the devouring flame.

At last nothing was left on the dying embers but a little heap of white dust—the ashes of the rose—and the woman in whom savage instincts were already rife, was satisfied.

But the butterflies in the garden of Eden were not with anger, for they loved the rose so hated by the woman. Never again, quivering with pleasure and delight, would they settle on its trembling petals, never again brush with open wings the perfumed mystic of its heart.

While the fatal act was being committed they flew wildly round the merciless executioner, but Eve did not even see them, so entirely was she given over to her revenge. And now, as she walked off triumphant, they drew near to gaze upon the pale remains of their beloved lying on the little heap of extinguished grasses.

At least they would keep as much of her as they could. So in a tumultuous swarm they fluttered down upon the precious relics, sometimes singly, sometimes all together, rolling themselves in the ashes, enveloping themselves in her dust.

And ever since that time the fine white powder, scattered from the wings of butterflies, is the ashes of the rose.

The Absentminded Man.

An amusing case of absentmindedness was experienced by a young soldier the other evening. The young man is usually of a bright nature, but for some time past his friends have been noticing that he does some peculiar things. Not long ago he was at a reception, and a few minutes before closing time he went to the coat box and secured his hat and coat. Then he walked up stairs to the dancing floor and picked up a pocket cut and walked home with it on his arm. Arriving at his home, he found that he had one coat on and another on his arm. The next day he found the owner of the extra coat, and mutual explanations followed and all was well. But that has been eclipsed by his latest exploits. He had finished his toilet and started for the street. As soon as he made his appearance he was greeted with smiles from everybody who saw him. He walked down the street and could not imagine what made the passers smile at him. Finally he reached the restaurant where he takes his meals, and then he realized that he was carrying something in his hand. He looked at it and found that he had carried the lighted lamp from his room and had walked several blocks along the main street with it in his hand.

Another case is cited concerning the same young man. At the office where he is employed he has occasion to answer many calls at the telephone. One evening he was reading a book in his room when an alarm clock rang in the adjoining room. The absentminded youth got up and commenced to yell "Hello! Hello!" and when his best friend of the other room inquired as to the cause of the yelling the young man said in a sheepish manner, "Oh, I thought it was the telephone bell ringing."

Talk It Over.

I have learned some things in the course of a long business life and still have a great many others to learn.

But the chief thing I have learned can be condensed into one nugget of wisdom in three words, Talk it over.

If thy business enemy offend thee, don't smite him on the cheek. Take him by the buttonhole in a friendly manner and talk it over.

Some one tells you that Smith, down the street, has said or done something to your detriment. Perhaps he has, and perhaps he has not. If he has, your best policy is to prevent his repeating his remark or deed in the future. If he has not, you don't want to do him an injustice, even in your own mind.

Put on your hat, leave your temper at home, go down and make a friendly call. Be neighborly, frank, open. Tell him the truth and ask him for equal frankness. Nine hundred and ninety-nine times out of a thousand the whole matter will be explained and straightened out in five minutes, and you will part as personal friends rather than as personal and business enemies. You will both feel better, you will live side by side in harmony; the earth will be brighter, the sunshine clearer, your own heart lighter and mankind take on a more friendly aspect. Don't get mad and rush to your desk and send a scorching letter; be a man and a Christian and go yourself.

Talk it over.—Hardware.

ADVERSE CRITICISM.

What flowers I had in some fair knot were bound.
And so I laid them on a public stall,
Wondering would any one take note at all.
Or, taking note, to praise them would be found.
Then cried, "No true flowers these!" and let it fall.

And what coarse thread about the stalks is wound!"

'Tis true, I fear me, dandelions and grass
I culled, mistaking them for garden bloom.
And half believing that they so might pass,
And now my critic has pronounced my doom.
Half undecieved, I shall not grudge my lot
If friends may find one true forget-me-not.

SILK FROM THE SPRUCE.

Pulp Fiber Is Found to Make a Very Good Substitute.

Silk of excellent quality is being made from the spruce tree in Europe, and a movement is on foot to establish the industry in this country. It is said that the cost of making silk by this process is one-fifth that of the spinning from the silkworm cocoon. The fiber takes dye as readily as the animal product and can be woven as securely and as rapidly. It is also claimed that the tensile strength of the fabric is as great, as if it were greater than, the real silk.

Although the spruce lends itself to the process better than most woods, other forms of pulp can be used, the inventor even declaring that old newspapers, after they have been cleaned of the printer's ink, may be readily made into silk. The inventor, who has made the subject a study for 20 years, based his experimental work on the fact that the silkworm, in eating and assimilating the leaf of the mulberry tree, obtained the foundation of the silk from vegetable fiber. In trying to hit upon the particular chemical process that the original fiber went through before it was spun as silk by the loom he found that after the fiber had been separated it needed the chemical action of a certain form of glucose. In the new treatment the tree is crushed, and the resulting fiber is mixed with glucose and then placed in deep metal tubs. A disk, somewhat like a steam piston, is then forced down on the mass by hydraulic pressure until it is compressed into a very heavy gun.

At the bottom of the tubs are tubes terminating in tiny glass nipples, with exceedingly small apertures. Under the hydraulic pressure the mixture is forced out of these glass nipples in silklite fibers, which are so fine that the girls who are employed in this portion of the process are obliged to wear highly magnifying glasses in order to see when any of the fibers break. The material is then carried over electrically heated drums, which dry the ether and the alcohol out of it. It is then plunged into feed water, dried and spooled for the looms.

Color Blindness.

The term color blindness implies an entire absence of the color sense, and there are a few persons who are in this condition, but it also includes all the cases of partial color blindness in which the perception of one of the fundamental colors—red, green and violet—is wanting, and which are known as red blindness, green blindness and violet blindness. The line between these various kinds of color blindness and a perfect perception of colors is not sharply drawn, so that a large number of persons have what is called a defective sense, which falls short of actual color blindness. There is no doubt that color blindness in its various forms is much more common than is generally supposed, and it is more common among the imperfectly than the well educated classes, and it is, curiously enough, still more common among Jews and Quakers, probably from hereditary causes. It is ten times more frequent among males than females in the general population, but among Quakers it is nearly the same in both sexes. In the general population 4-16 per cent, or about 1 male in every 25, are color blind.—New York Ledger.

Lampreys.

In the rivers and lakes of New York state there is a hand fish that roams at large and makes its living by robbing the gentlemen fish. It even attacks such voracious fish as the black bass and the pickerel, fastening itself to them and sucking their blood until they are dead.

The name of this blood sucking monster is the lamprey. Professor Guice of Cornell university has seen 12,000 of these lampreys spawning at one time in the outlet of Cayuga

H. H. GRANICE - EDITOR

WHEAT went up again to $1.03 in Chicago last Thursday amid great excitement.

GOLD is now arriving on this coast by steamer from the Klondyke by the ton. Ounces and pounds are not in it according to latest reports.

"The evidence accumulates with each day's advice that the long-continued depression in financial circles has passed, and thanks to five years of forced economy and cessation of speculation, coupled with to-day's abundant harvest at remunerative prices to the agriculturist, a new prosperity is coming to the people."

He sold his "birthmark" for a mess of potash. This is the way the editor of the Petaluma Courier puts it in one of the articles which led to his arrest for libel. Great Scott! Ravenscroft, better read up your Bible a little bit. We were always taught that Esau sold his birthright for a mess of pottage, and we never knew that the youngster possessed the traditional strawberry mark on his left arm.

The latest report from Dun's Review as to improving business are among the most satisfactory yet recorded by that reliable publication. The "Review" says: "Every city reporting this week notes increase in trade and nearly all bright prospects. The great change in business is emphasized by the presence of a multitude of buyers from all parts of the country and by the heavy purchases they make. The strong rise in stocks, the growth of bank clearings and railroad earnings and the heavy speculations in many products, and most of all in wheat, have made the week one of surpassing interest even to those who best remember the upward rush in 1879."

THE arrest of Editor Ravenscroft of Petaluma for publishing defamatory articles in his newspaper against City Trustees Walsh, Jacobsen and Horwege of that city, ought to prove a warning to a certain class of self-styled "editors," who too frequently mistake freedom of the press for license. The following is one of the articles which led to the arrest of Mr. Ravenscroft on a charge of criminal libel:

"The hand was the fine Italian hand of Mike Walsh; but the voice was the voice of Jacobsen; and Horwege sold his birthmark for a mess of potash. The excavation of the canal was only dug as a wholesale way of making political graves, and truly 'twas a grave matter.'"

Of course if Messrs. Walsh, Horwege and Jacobsen are a set of rascals and thieves, as the editor of the Courier implies in the above article, and he can prove it, the City Trustees of Petaluma ought to be arrested and jailed and Ravenscroft be tendered a vote of thanks by the entire community his paper essays to represent. If he cannot do this—"Ah, there's the rub."

The excitement attendant upon the discovery of the marvelous gold fields of Alaska-Klondyke is bringing to the front all kinds of schemes for fleecing the unwary. The most dangerous of these are the capital stock companies which are springing up like mushrooms all over the East, as well as in California. The ostensible purpose of these companies is to explore and develop the gold fields of the Klondyke and other rivers and small streams tributary to the Yukon, but in nine cases out of ten they are undoubtedly baits to catch suckers. As a matter of fact some of these companies will be conducted honestly and in the interest of the stockholders, and if so conducted may prove paying investments, and it therefore behooves those who want to get their share of the Klondyke gold, without subjecting themselves to the hardships of a miner's life in the far north, to go slow and not rush into these ventures without first being reasonably sure that they are taking stock, in a fair, honest and legitimate business enterprise. The safest plan to pursue, however, is to let all of them severely alone. At the best they are but games of chance, and you play the other fellow's game, too.

Col. A. R. Harrison of the Mervyn returned from a week's camping trip at Gualala Tuesday. He reports having had exceptionally good piscatorial sport and indeed the catches were uniformly so large that Mr. Harrison salted down some 200 fine trout, some of which were 17 inches in length. Mr. Harrison was accompanied by H. Martens and Mr. Liebert. On Tuesday Mrs. Harrison and a party of ladies started for the vacant camp and anticipate being absent from home twelve or fourteen days.

Scrofula Affects the Eyes—Little Boy Treated by an Oculist Without Relief—But Now He Is Well.

"When my little boy was three months old his eyes became very sore and he was almost blind. I took him to an oculist who treated him for six months, and left him as bad as he was at the beginning. Finally Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and I began giving it to him. In less than three weeks he was able to go into the sun without covering his eyes, and today his eyes are perfectly well, and his ears and nose, which were badly affected, are also well. Hood's Sarsaparilla has certainly done wonders for my boy." MRS. JAMES H. PAINTER, Amador, California. Remember

Is Life Worth Living?

If there is an individual on earth who is excusable for thus questioning himself, it is the unhappy mortal who suffers from malaria in some one of its diabolical forms. This is no difficult condition, however. Life is worth living by any man or woman who enjoys good health, and is not harassed by a reproachful conscience. The malarial scourge, heavily laid on, is a terrible one for the poor sufferer to endure. A series of freezings, scorplings and sweats—the law leaving one as limp and as strengthless as a rag, and hard to endure, recurring as they do with fiendish regularity. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the world-wide known preventative and cure of this class of maladies, either in the form of ague or fever, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake. Used with persistence they will, rely upon it, eradicate disease from the system. They also conquer rheumatism, kidney and bladder complaints, nervousness, dyspepsia, liver complaint and constipation, and renew failing strength.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Successful Deer Hunters.

John Fridgeger killed a four-pronged buck in the mountains north of Glen Ellen, on Saturday last, which weighed, when dressed, 105 pounds. So for this season Johnny and his brothers Dan and Jacob have killed four deer in the vicinity of the Fridgeger ranch.

On Sunday last a fine buck was shot in the mountains about five miles west of town, near the headwaters of the Fowler Creek by a party of five hunters composed of R. J. Corbet, Billy Meyers, Sol. Carriger, Fred. Carriger and Wm. Fowler.

A hunting party composed of Carl Dresel, John Fridgeger, Jas. Pieratt, Thos. Mann and J. F. Kerridge, who went into camp near the Goethe place, on Saturday last, killed four deer the first three days they were out.

Carl Dresel shot a four-pronged deer one day this week. The event was mentioned in the Examiner on Wednesday, but by a "bull" of the compositor the item read "four young deer."

Deer are reported quite plentiful in the mountains surrounding this valley, but they are wary and lay very low and it requires good hounds to jump them up.

Petaluma Clippers Win.

A game of base ball was played at Petaluma last Sunday between the Buena Vistas of this place and the Petaluma Clippers. It was an exciting game from beginning to finish. The former team played well and had the game its own way until the last inning, when the Petaluma boys won by one run. The features of the game were the good playing of Will Broderick, Harry Knight, Frank Elebeben and the curves of Pitcher Castello of the Clippers. The score was 13 to 14 in favor of the Petaluma nine.

Wants to Raise Sonoma County's Assessment.

The State Board of Equalization has fixed Friday, September 3rd, as the day on which representatives from Sonoma county may appear and show cause why the assessed valuation of the county should not be increased. The Board seems determined to make the more progressive counties of the State bear a share of the burden of the laggard counties, and the officials who go to Sacramento to plead the cause of old Sonoma have a hard fight before them.

Trial of the Alleged Burglars.

The trial of George Reegan and Wm. Herges, recently arrested by Deputy Sheriff Ohm and charged with being guilty of committing the numerous robberies in this valley, has been set for October 12th. It is a singular coincidence that since the arrest and confinement of these men no robberies have taken place in this valley, whereas previous to their apprehension two or three were committed weekly.

Prune Picking.

Manager Bluxome of the Spreckles ranch has been giving employment the past few days to all the idle men in Sonoma picking the prune crop on the place, which is roughly estimated at being between fifty and eighty tons. The price paid is a fair one, $2 per ton, and enables the pickers to make from $2 to $3 per day. The job will last about a week longer.

Rufus vs. Lewis.

Judgment was rendered last Tuesday in favor of plaintiff in the civil suit of Rufus vs. Lewis in the sum of $100.20 and costs of suit, amounting to $16.55.

Light Pockets, but Heavy Hearts

Geo. Green, the champion welter weight of the world, was defeated last Thursday night in San Francisco by Joe Walcott. He was knocked out in the eighteenth round and the decision was given to the colored scrapper. Quite a number of Sonoma Valley sports, who had placed their money on the hitherto invincible Green, returned home yesterday with light pockets but heavy hearts.

Smoky Atmosphere.

The valley has been enveloped in smoke every day the past week, caused by a forest fire which is burning fiercely in the mountains at some remote point, possibly in the redwood belt on the coast.

New Telephone Office.

The Sunset Telephone Company has connected Vineyard Station on the line of the Donahue railway with their net work of wires in this county. The office has been set up in Batto's fruit dryer.

Land Transfer.

Walter E. Dean has purchased from Mary E. Nordin a one-sixth interest in the land at the Agua Caliente Springs. The consideration named in the deed is $10.

Local Brevities.

The City Trustees will meet in regular semi-monthly session next Wednesday evening.

T. A. Nufer is getting his horses in trim for the State Fair, which meets at Sacramento from September 6th to 18th.

The civil suit of Bush & Mallett vs. John A. and Mary E. Nordin will be heard by Justice Cheney at one o'clock to-day. Both sides will be represented by attorneys and the case promises to be bitterly contested.

The fruit dryer of John Batto & Son, has been running heavily the past week on prunes, disposing of 8 or 10 tons daily. At the present time about 24 hands are employed in the establishment and already this season they have handled about 350 tons of fruit.

Jas. Pieratt, who by the way is one of our most successful local deer hunters, placed this office under obligations on Tuesday last by sending down from Buck Camp, four or five miles north of Sonoma, a quarter of a large buck, killed near the camp the day before. Thanks, Jim.

Julius Fochetti has secured the agency for Sonoma Valley of the John Deere "Secretary" plow, which has been pronounced the improvement of the century in agricultural implements. One of these plows is now on exhibition at his shop on Spain street.

As announced in these columns last week J. P. Key and the Weaver Bros., started for the Trinity mines last Saturday morning. They passed through town about nine o'clock in their four-horse rig and were given a hearty send-off by the people who happened to be abroad at that hour in this sleepy burg. Eph Cutter also joined the party after they passed through town.

Base ball is again becoming the leading athletic game of the season and almost every city and village in the State has one or more nines. Sonoma Valley has two well-organized teams, the Schellvilles and Buena Vistas. Last week the Grammar and Convent schools both organized clubs and played a match game Sunday, resulting in favor of the former team. Next Sunday the Petaluma Clippers will give the Buena Vistas a return game on the diamond on the McGill place.

New Advertisements.

The attention of our readers is called to the new ads. which appear in to-day's issue. D. L. Randolph, assignee of the Hood winery, announces that he will dispose of all the cooperage on the Hood ranch on Wednesday, September 1st. A fine luncheon will be provided to those who attend the sale, which will be held on the premises.

Hale Bros & Co., the leading dry goods house of Petaluma, announce the arrival of new fall and winter goods daily and publish a few special prices.

J. B. Barbarin publishes a notice to the general public which it would be well for business men to read.

John Batto & Son of Vineyard Station are paying the highest market price for dried fruit of all kinds.

The land notice of Max O. Aroldt of Napa county appears on another page. He will prove up on his land claim before the County Clerk of Napa county on Saturday, October 30th.

The W. B. Conkey Co., of Chicago advertise agents wanted for their "Official Guide to the Klondyke Country."

ARRESTED FOR CRIMINAL LIBEL

D. W. Ravenscroft, editor of the Petaluma Courier, was arrested in Petaluma last Tuesday evening, on complaint of Trustee M. Walsh, charged with criminal libel. The arrest was made by Constable Brush, and Ravenscroft was taken before Justice of the Peace King, who set the preliminary examination for the following day. The offending editor was then released on his own recognizance.

The causes which led to the arrest of editor Ravenscroft was an article attacking the reputations of M. Walsh, A. W. Horwege and C. A. Jacobsen, which appeared in the Courier of August 17th. These gentlemen are leading citizens of Petaluma and compose a majority of the Board of Trustees of that city.

Following is one of the articles which caused the arrest of the editor:

"The Board of City Trustees at its session last evening placed itself on record as a prize-winner among the feeble-minded. With a constant protest from the tax-paying public against the unjust, useless or illegitimate use of public funds, it has done about as much as it dare do to bankrupt the City Treasury for private ends. The tax money gathered from an already overburdened people is diverted from its legitimate channels for personal and private benefit, and with but a small shadow of authority covering the maladministration of the corporation finances. The majority of the City Board, constituted of

M. Walsh, A. W. Horwege, C. A. Jacobsen, have put the city into a bad hole for purposes they cannot well explain, against the protests of Trustees Gould and Stratton and the people generally. The proposed 'improvement' of the creek; the making of a new channel with the mistakes of former Boards staring them in the face from the Edwards creek 15-puzzle; the reconstruction of Washington-street bridge, giving away as rubbish a bridge that cost $3,000 for one that will cost less than $1,500, indicate that there has been more persuasion than simple logic to advance the proposition. The trinity of Trustees may be mistaken or they may be factually deficient in mental acumen or moral responsibility, but if they get through their proposition of improving private property at public expense without an injunction suit they may consider themselves in the biggest kind of luck."

Mr. Ravenscroft is now out on bail in the sum of $500 to answer to the charge. No time has yet been set for the hearing.

SCHELLVILLE SIFTINGS

Mrs. A. Kiser of Embarcadero, accompanied by her son, was a visitor to Santa Rosa last Monday.

Joe Anderson has returned from Dixon and is now employed on Wm. Kennedy's ranch near this place.

On Sunday, September 6th, the Pioneer Base Ball Club of Napa and the Schellville nine will play a match game in this place.

The sporting element of this vicinity turned out in force last Sunday afternoon to shout for the Twilight and Starlight base ball teams, both composed of men picked from the Schellville Base Ball Club, while they played a game for six large watermelons.

The contest was exciting from the start and some fine runs were made by the players on both sides. In the third inning Capt. F. Schell of the Starlights hurt Jim Small's feelings by making a mis-calculation and catching him on the back of the head with a swift ball. Joe Kiser officiated as Captain of the Twilights and handled his men to perfection and at the end of the game won the melons by one run, the score being 23 to 24. The players and positions were as follows:

TWILIGHTS	POSITION	STARLIGHTS
J. Kiser	catcher	A. Schell
T. Kiser	pitcher	C. Wise
A. Kiser	short stop	A. Cook
J. McMullen	1st base	F. Schell
J. Caffey	2nd base	V. Donahue
Jim Small	3rd base	T. Pickens
D. Watt	left field	R. Donahue
H. Rubke	center field	J. Guilfoyle
A. Rubke	right field	Wm. Rubke

A MOON-LIT NIGHT.

The sea is singing its merry lay, As it dashes on the shore; The moon shines bright and reflects its light Before my cottage door.

The little boats out on the bay, Are rocked to sleep by the tide; While the foamy crests of the rolling waves, Is a veil for the ocean's bride.

How calm is the sea on a moon-lit night, How tranquil are the stars; As they blink and wink in the sleeping sky, And dream they have souls like ours.

MONOTONOUS LIVES.

FOLLOWED BY THOSE WHO TEND THE LIGHTHOUSES.

Qualifications and Remuneration—Regulations Which Must Be Observed to the Letter—Provisions Made For the Comfort of These Useful Servants.

A lighthouse keeper is appointed by the secretary of the treasury on the recommendation of the lighthouse board, and at first receives only an acting appointment. At the end of three months, if he passes an examination by the naval officer who is the inspector of the district, he receives a full appointment; if he does not pass, he is dropped from the service. A keeper must be able to read and write, keep accounts, sail and pull a boat and have enough mechanical ability to make the necessary minor repairs about the station and keep it in order. There is only one grade of keeper recognized by law, but the custom of the service has divided the keepers into different grades, with different pay and duties and with promotion from one grade to another. A man may be appointed to the service and assigned to a particular station, but he may be moved at any time if promoted or if the interests of the service demand it. At stations requiring but one keeper a retired seafaring man, with a family, is usually selected, and in general men of the seafaring class are most wanted. At stations where there is a fog signal one of the assistants is a man who has an engineer's license and is something of a machinist.

Keepers are paid on an average about $800 a year, but the individual sums paid vary from $100 to $1,000 a year, according to the importance of the station and the amount of service rendered. The principal keeper at Minot's Ledge light, just outside of Boston, receives $1,000 a year for his services, and this furnishes the only instance where the pay of a keeper is specified by law.

The keepers who live at isolated lighthouses and on the offshore lightships lead a very monotonous life, broken only by the sight of passing vessels and the quarterly visit of the lighthouse supply boat.

These keepers get considerable leave, about two weeks in three months, during which time they visit their families on full pay. A lighthouse on an outlying reef, for instance, is on the same status as a lightship, except that it cannot be blown away and the keepers cannot leave it except when they are relieved, as a storm might come up and prevent their return.

Much is done by the lighthouse board, to further the comfort of all its employees, but most is done for those who endure the solitary life at the isolated lights and on the lightships. Libraries are furnished the keepers and their families. Each contains about 40 volumes of works of history, science and poetry, with a fair supply of good novels. This complete library is left at a station for three months, and is then transferred to another station by an inspector on his quarterly visit. There are nearly 1,000 of these libraries in circulation, each in its little portable case, and, by their judicious interchange, the keepers of stations where they are furnished see about 200 volumes a year.

Keepers are forbidden to engage in any business which will prevent their presence at their stations or interfere with the proper performance of their duties. Many have useful and profitable occupations which they carry on at the stations, while some fill pulpits, are justices of the peace or teach school. All keepers are furnished with quarters for themselves and in some cases for their families. In some cases they are furnished with food and rations. Other stations have barns furnished for cattle and horses, and boats are furnished all stations inaccessible by land.

The discipline of the service has been always rigid, as befitting a service where negligence or inefficiency may mean the loss of many lives and much valuable property. Dismissal instantly follows in two cases—where a keeper is found intoxicated and where he allows his light to go out. Keepers are trained to consider the care of the light and the lighthouse property above any and all personal considerations, and it is rare indeed when they fail to realize this high ideal. There have been a number of instances illustrating the esprit de corps of the service—how the keepers of the Minot's Ledge light first built a wall down with the light and died at their posts, how one keeper saved his lens and let his family look out for themselves, and instances where they have saved public property and lost their own.

Fortunately the service is not hampered by any question of politics, and this fact, coupled with the excellent discipline maintained, accounts for the fine class of men now in the service—men who take an honest pride in their work, and whose interest makes the efficiency of the service what it is. It is unfortunate that the navy has no retiring laws for its seamen which would allow men after 30, 25 or 30 years' service, depending on the physical condition of the man, to be retired and placed in the lighthouse service for the rest of their lives. A valuable class of men would thus be added, and the nation would be paying a debt which now goes unpaid.—Philadelphia Ledger.

He is an old campaigner who has won considerable celebrity as an Indian fighter." "I have heard of him. COUNTY GLEANINGS.

The hop-picking season in Sonoma county opened Monday. The services of pickers are in active demand, and all who desire employment will have no difficulty in finding it. Seventy-five cents per hundred pounds will be paid for picking.

The grape crop is coming on finely and wine-making will begin within the next two weeks. The crop is going to be the largest ever gathered in Sonoma county, and the yield for this end of Sonoma will be 30,000 tons.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do. There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine, and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp Root is soon realized. It stands the highest of its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention the Sonoma Index-Tribune and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.
